

Mayor Dempsey Vetoes O'Reilly's Resolution

Files Veto of Resolution Authorizing Drafting of a Local Law to Abolish Board of Public Works—To Do All Work Requested by Aldermen Would Require Budget Two or Three Times the Amount Provided.

Mayor E. J. Dempsey has filed with City Clerk George W. Moore his veto of the resolution introduced by Alderman O'Reilly at the last meeting of the common council which directed the corporation counsel and laws and rules committee to draft a local law abolishing the board of public works, and placing the powers of the board under the jurisdiction of the common council. The resolution, after considerable debate, was adopted by the council by a vote of 7 to 5.

Under the charter provisions all resolutions or ordinances calling for the expenditure of money or of a legislative or other character, are referred to the mayor for his approval or disapproval.

The veto message.

Mayor Dempsey in his veto message says:

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Kingston, N. Y.

Alderman O'Reilly's resolution, passed Tuesday, July 2nd, 1924, relative to the "Commissioners of Public Works" is herewith returned disapproved.

The following are my objections thereto:

The commissioners of public works, a non-partisan board consisting of four members appointed by the mayor, and the mayor, who is a member and president of the board, the term of each appointive member four years, with one term expiring each year, gives the city a board so constituted that there are men of experience in the particular work of the city at large rather than any particular section thereof.

The city is most fortunate in the membership of this board; a number of our leading business men having served thereon without compensation, and devoted time during business hours as well as at meetings, which has worked to the distinct advantage of our city, with reference to all matters committed to their charge.

I have in mind that the particular criticism coming from your honorable board deals more specifically with the maintenance and upkeep of our streets. You surely have not overlooked the character of the past winter; light snow fall; mild weather during the day, with freezing at night; the movement of heavy traffic; the tendency of which was to bring about unusual wear and tear upon the highways, not only of our city but throughout this section. You are also conscious of the fact that street improvements that were made with different types of pavement within the past seven or eight years, have within the past year reached a stage which would indicate that the life of the pavement was practically exhausted, bringing an unusual load to bear upon the present year's maintenance.

The commissioners of public works established as a program a plan of doing all of the repairs possible to all of the streets of the city, and to that end the equipment has been kept in constant operation; more than 45 streets have been repaired since spring and it is expected that an equal number will receive attention before the season closes. For the future it is expected, in addition to keeping up extensive repair work, to do all the reconstruction that can be handled within reason.

The commissioners of public works have constantly in mind the interest of our residents; not only in the light of repairs to the streets of the city, but also in endeavoring to keep expenditures down and the tax rate where it will meet with their approval.

The meetings of the commissioners of public works as you know are open to the public; they welcome suggestions from any source, and have given particular attention to matters which have been referred to them by the council. Notwithstanding the fact that there appears to be an impression that the views of the council have been ignored in some instances, each resolution passed by your body has been referred to the appropriate committee of the board, investigated, and where compliance could be had with your views there has been no disposition to disregard your action. To do all the work requested indiscriminately would require a budget two or three times the amount provided.

Recognizing the desire to meet the problems of the city exhibited by members of your council, I also have in mind that your body is directly constituted from the commissioners of public works; that you are elected for a two-year term; and that the terms of all members expire at the same time; that you naturally feel that your chief interest is in meeting the needs and requirements of the respective wards from which you are elected, and that it was to meet the difficulties attend-

Hoover and Work Outline Campaign

Republican National Chairman Urges Workers to Thrust Religion and Prohibition in the Background—Stresses Tariff as an Issue.

Washington, July 7 (AP).—Members of the Republican national committee from eastern states were invited to confer today with Secretary Hoover and National Chairman Work upon the establishment of a regional campaign organization.

Several of the committeemen reported that they were unable to attend, but some of these sent proxies and enough were on hand to go into a discussion of political situation in the east and to map out a plan of campaign.

Secretary Hoover is anxious to perfect his campaign organization before leaving the capital and to this end a similar gathering of national committeemen from the west has been announced for next week.

Mr. Work yesterday made public a letter sent to members of the national committee urging them to thrust religion and prohibition into the background and wage an "informative and constructive" campaign. The national chairman asked, too, that the tariff and the party's record be stressed. "He termed the tariff 'one of the outstanding issues'."

Expanding his reference to prohibition in a later oral statement, Mr. Work declared the party management "did not propose to make prohibition an issue in this campaign."

He added that no further expression of Republican views might be expected until Secretary Hoover delivers his address accepting the nomination early next month.

Italian Fliers' Plane Damaged

Encountered Fog, Winds, Rain, Hail, and Thought of Landing Only When Fuel Began to Run Low.

Rio Janeiro, July 7 (AP).—Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo P. Delprete in breaking the world's distance flight record bettered their own duration flight record by 25 minutes.

Bernardo Attolico, Italian ambassador to Brazil, announced today after a telegraphic interview with the airmen that they had been in the air for 59 hours before they landed at Touros, 50 miles north of Natal and 4,377 miles by air from Monticello Field, Rome. They held the duration flight record of 58 hours, 34 minutes and 25.15 seconds. It is unlikely that they will be credited with the 59 hour record since the previous mark must be bettered by at least one hour to be recognized.

Fog, the ambassador said, blocked their attempt to reach Rio Janeiro which they would have made without difficulty in the elapsed time. Instead of landing at Point Genipabu, 10 miles north of Natal, as reported at first, they flew so low as to make it appear that they had touched the ground. Then they continued on in the fog and darkness searching for a suitable landing place for their large plane. Finally they came down on the muddy beach at Touros, damaging the wheels of their plane. The men were not hurt.

At times the fog was so dense that they flew only 20 feet from the ground. The fliers told the ambassador that during their flight from Rome they had encountered all kinds of adverse weather, fog, winds, rain, and even hail. They managed to fight their way through this, however, and only when their fuel began to run low did they think of landing. For three hours they flew back and forth in the darkness, skimming the water in search of a safe landing place until they decided to come down at Touros.

They will continue their flight to Rio Janeiro in their plane when it is repaired.

The Italian Chamber of Commerce of Sao Paulo decided to pay the expenses of the flight in addition to giving the airmen a prize of $50,000 lire ($25,000).

It was a body so constituted that the commissioners of public works were first pursuant to charter amendment by act of the legislature and later by Local Law No. 2 of the year 1924, created and continued as an important board of our city.

Threaten Arrest of Women Workers

Injunction Restraining Construction of Baptist Tabernacle Was Directed Only to Men, So Women Workers Until Second Injunction Was Issued.

Dallas, Texas, July 7 (AP).—Women carpenters as well as men were threatened with arrest here today should they attempt to continue work on a Baptist tabernacle, construction of which has caused the issuance of two temporary injunctions and left a pastor in jail.

A second injunction was issued when deputy sheriffs who attempted to disperse a crew of women workers were informed the first injunction only ordered "men" to cease their activities. While the officers returned to court for added authority, the women continued to carry large sheets of roofing up ladders and noisily to fasten the material to rafters, part of which were hammered into place at night to the annoyance of those living near the new church.

Informing that the first injunction he issued failed to provide a means of stopping women carpenters, Judge Towne Young revised his order to restrain "men, women or persons" from further work on the building, alleged to have been constructed in violation of city ordinances. In addition to complaining of the sound of hammers and saws at night, those who sought to stop construction charged the building failed to meet specifications for fireproof auditoriums.

Returning with the new injunction yesterday, the officers found the 50 or 60 women workers had quit for the day, but the deputies were ordered to enforce rigidly their new orders today, pending a hearing Wednesday to determine whether the injunction should be made permanent.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Earl Anderson, pastor of the church, was in the county jail. Mr. Anderson went to jail after he was fined $100 and ordered to post a bond of $1,000 when Judge Young found him guilty of contempt of court for violating the injunction.

Governor Asks Reed to Help Him

May Ask His Chief Opponent to Stamp in Middle Western States—Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt Says Mrs. Shaver Was Mistaken.

New York, July 7 (AP).—Governor Smith has called on his chief opponent for the Democratic Presidential nomination, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, for aid in the coming campaign.

He wrote Senator Reed an invitation to come to Albany as his guest and confer on the campaign. The letter was made public by Smith headquarters here.

"Now that the storm of battle has cleared away," the governor wrote, "I hope that I can prevail upon you to spend a night at Albany at the executive mansion and confer with me on the conduct and issues of the campaign in which we are engaged together. Please let me know what your plans are for the near future so that we can perhaps get together soon."

The Missouri Senator, who waged a strenuous campaign for the nomination only to be swept aside by the Smith landslide at Houston, publicly offered his aid to Governor Smith immediately after the latter's nomination. It was believed the Governor would ask Reed, who is a forceful speaker, to take the stump for him in the middle western states where the senator is best known.

Response from Mrs. Roosevelt.

The attack on Governor Smith made at Washington by Mrs. Clem L. Shaver, wife of the Democratic national chairman and leader of the Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League, a dry organizer, drew instant response here from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Mrs. Shaver's attack is well in line with the extreme and frequently untruthful statements made by the little group of women represented by the Women's Democratic Law Enforcement Committee of Baltimore," said the wife of the man who nominated Governor Smith at Houston. She said she believed Mrs. Shaver had been "misled" by a group that considered enforcement of the Volstead law more important than truth or fair play.

Mrs. Shaver said the governor had "stamped himself as a charlatan and a faker," and that the dry Democratic women of the country would not support the ticket.

Denies Discussion.

Reports that there was discussion in the Smith camp between Tammany leaders and friends of Governor Smith not identified with that organization was indignantly denied by James J. Hooley, a close friend of the governor's.

The report of friction among Governor Smith's friends is undoubtedly propaganda intended to cover up and draw attention away from the dissension in the Republican camp," he said in terms of the reports "absolutely untrue."

He said all sincere friends of the governor would be found "fighting" side by side for a common cause under Election Day, despite the efforts of the Republicans to cause dissension in the Democratic ranks.

Senator William H. King of Utah was one of the callers at Smith headquarters yesterday. He predicted that the Rocky Mountain states would be in the Smith column in November.

"I am confident the party will carry many states this year that it has not carried in the last few campaigns," he said.

To Attend Funeral

The governor meanwhile had laid aside all political plans to go to Centerville, Maryland, to attend the funeral today of the son of John J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors Corporation, who has been a close friend of the governor for years.

The governor used the private car of William F. Kenny which was attached to the regular Pennsylvania train, leaving New York at 11:45 o'clock last night.

AGED CITY WATCHMAN TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

Thomas Crittenden, 80, of 19 North Wilbur avenue, who is employed as night watchman at Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street, was suddenly taken ill while alone in the office of the board of public works Friday night. He managed to get to the telephone and called up police headquarters and Officers Van Buren and Keresman went to his assistance and found him collapsed in a chair. Dr. Rancour was immediately summoned and rendered first aid and then had Mr. Crittenden removed to the City of Kingston Hospital where this morning his condition was reported as much improved.

Barmann Appointed State Trooper.

Henry P. Barmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Barmann of Albany avenue, who recently passed the civil service examination and was placed on the eligible list for appointment as a police officer in this city, being assigned to special duty, has resigned. Some time ago he passed the state civil service examination for the position of State Trooper and a few days ago he received notice that he had been appointed and requested to report at White Plains and join Troop K. He reported on Monday of this week.

Broadway Theatre Five Killed, Nine Belt Bus Line Remains Open, Injured When Trolley Hits Bus, Now Considered

Reade's Closes

Reade's Kingston Theatre on Wall Street Closes After Tonight's Show for Summer Season—Broadway to Remain Open—High Standard of Excellence to be Maintained.

The last performances of the season will be given this evening in Reade's Kingston Theatre on Wall street which will then close for the summer season. The Broadway Theatre, however, will remain open.

Commencing Monday both Reade's Kingston Theatre and the Broadway Theatre will be operated by the Kingston Operating Company which was formed earlier in the week for the purpose of operating both theatres. For economic reasons it was decided to close the Wall street theatre for the summer season.

Harry Lazarus, manager of the Broadway Theatre, will be in charge of both theatres, and it is expected that the same high standard of excellence maintained in the past at the Broadway Theatre will be continued. It has been decided that for the summer the Vitaphone and feature bills will be billed at the Broadway Theatre.

The bill for the first half of next week at the Broadway Theatre will be the feature picture "The Gorilla" while the latter half will feature Lon Chaney in what is said to be his greatest picture, "Laugh Clown."

Rescued from Potomac Rapids

Canoeist Caught in Swirling Rapids While Searching for Body of Drowned Man, Spends Night in Perilous Position.

Washington, July 7 (AP).—Herbert Lugenbeel, marooned upon a rock in the Potomac river rapids when his canoe overturned yesterday afternoon, was rescued today after having spent more than twelve hours clinging to his uncomfortable perch.

Cast upon the rock at 4 p. m., yesterday, Lugenbeel clung to it until after 5 o'clock this morning. When taken off he was apparently none the worse for his experience, going directly home and to bed.

With J. H. Angel, Lugenbeel set out yesterday afternoon in his frail craft searching for the body of a canoeist drowned early in the week. The swirling waters of the rapids capsized their canoe and each, after much buffeting by the swift running current, was cast up on rocks protruding above its surface.

Others engaged in looking for the body attempted to rescue the men. Helpless before the fast water, they called the fire and rescue squad from Washington. After many failures, the firemen succeeded in reaching Angel with a rope. This made fast to the rock and pulling along the line reached a position of safety, suffering several injuries on the way.

Similar efforts to reach Lugenbeel were unsuccessful and shortly after dark operations were suspended until daylight today.

Throughout the night he was forced to sit in a cramped position upon his rock, unable to communicate with the rapidly growing crowd on shore. A call was sent to the National Guard of the District of Columbia, and a powerful searchlight mounted on a truck was sent to the scene and played upon the stranded man throughout the hours of darkness.

Other calls for help were sent out and detachments from the Navy Yard, the Coast Guard and the Marine Corps were ready to take up the task of rescuing Lugenbeel with daylight today.

WRECK NEAR TIVOLI HALTS CENTRAL TRAINS.

A derailed freight train near Tivoli halted all trains on the New York Central for three hours late Thursday afternoon. A west bound freight struck a broken rail, which derailed one freight car. The car tore up both east and west bound tracks for several feet before it halted.

Wrecking crews from Poughkeepsie and Selkirk were called out and worked until late that evening to repair the tracks and place the freight car back on the rails. No one was injured in the accident.

In Police Court.

Abraham Mogilof of Brooklyn, arrested for driving to the left of a traffic standard on Friday, forfeited $10 cash bail by failure to appear in police court today. John C. Shell, Route No. 4, arrested Friday on North Front street for parking his car too far from the curb, furnished $10 cash bail for his appearance Monday in police court. Richard Dunn, arrested Friday on North Front street for public intoxication, was given a suspended sentence.

Recovered Money From Gypsies.

A band of gypsies passing through Ashland, Delaware county, stopped at the Rhinehart store and made a purchase. They tendered a $20 bill in payment. After giving them the change Rhinehart discovered that they had also made off with the $20 bill. He gave chase and after a 100 mile drive overtook them at Schenectady and recovered his money.

Brought Out At Public Hearing That Clifton Avenue and West Chestnut Street Sections May Be Given Bus Service—Broadway Line Would Not Run To Rhinebeck Ferry.

That the trolley road is considering the establishing of a belt line bus service for both sides of Broadway in the Clifton avenue and Stephan street section and the West Chestnut street and Montrepose avenue section was brought out at the public hearing held Friday evening by the railroad committee of the common council. The hearing had been called on the proposed bus routes to be established in case the application of the trolley road to substitute busses for trolley service was granted.

The trolley road was represented at the hearing Friday evening by G. Burton Tellow, County Judge Joseph M. Fowler and George R. Whitaker. Others present at the hearing which was presided over by Alderman Leo Clare, chairman of the committee, were Aldermen Fred M. Dressel and John Hull, the other two members of the railroad committee; President C. Ray Everett and Aldermen Jack Hernandez and A. D. Relyea. The only citizens present were A. Ray Powley who was interested in the question of what kind of service would be afforded Ponckhockie, and E. J. Rich who was interested in the proposed Clifton avenue and Stephan street belt line service.

Protest from Ponckhockie.

A. Ray Powley said he desired to enter a protest with the committee against the establishing of a twenty minute service in the Ponckhockie section of the city and thought that the same kind of service as it was now getting from the trolley road. Mr. Tellow called attention to the fact that the Washington avenue and Albany avenue sections were now getting thirty minute bus service and the needs of those sections were being taken care of by the service.

Service for West Chestnut St.

H. L. Van Deusen of West Chestnut street asked if the trolley road or the railroad committee had considered the establishing of bus service in the West Chestnut street and Montrepose avenue section of the city.

Mr. Tellow and members of the railroad committee said that that had been given consideration and that it was intended when the proposed belt line service was put into effect on Stephan street and Clifton avenue to hook it up with the West Chestnut street section of the city.

Transfers Would Be Issued.

This belt line would operate independently of the main bus line but passengers on the belt line could obtain transfers to the main bus routes. Mr. Powley was also interested in the question of transfers and was informed by Mr. Tellow that transfers would be issued from one bus route to the other the same as transfers were now being given from trolley line to bus line or bus line to trolley line.

Meeting Day Line Steamers.

In reply to questions by some of the aldermen, Mr. Tellow said that the trolley road had no objection to the out of town busses being run to Kingston Point during the Day Line season to pick up passengers for the boarding house sections. He said that the majority of the passengers of the Day Line were now carried by trolley car to the Central Bus Terminal.

The trolley company had filed a map with the railroad committee outlining the proposed bus routes in case the application to substitute busses for trolley cars was granted.

According to the map the busses to be operated in place of the trolley cars will only run as far as Hasbrouck avenue and Ferry street, coming down Broadway to the Strand and running through the Strand to Hasbrouck avenue to Ferry street and back up Broadway. Ponckhockie would be served by the bus line operating over the old Colonial route which would come down Hasbrouck avenue to the Strand and run over the Strand to Kingston Point.

No Broadway Busses to Ferry.

Some of the aldermen asked why the proposed Broadway bus line could not be operated as far as the Rhinebeck ferry, and it was brought out that owing to the narrowness of the streets and the parking of automobiles near the ferry as well as the present taxi stand, it would be impossible for busses to make the turn from Ferry street into the Strand or from the Strand into Ferry street at the ferry shed.

Mr. Tellow stated that the trolley road would like very much to operate as far as the Rhinebeck ferry for it would mean more business for the bus line from the ferry patrons.

Will Make Trial Trip.

After some talk it was decided to make a trial trip with a bus to ascertain if the turn at the street intersection could be made. When this is tried out by the railroad committee and members of the common council will be asked to be present. As no one else desired to be heard, Alderman Clare decided the hearing closed. The railroad committee, it was stated, would later submit its report to the common council.

Searchers Fail To Find Body Of Lowenstein

Plane and Mechanic of Plane Crashes About in Tag in Previous Search—Whole Affair Remembered As a Gigantic Hoax.

London, July 7 (AP).—Discussion of the mystery of Captain Alfred Lowenstein's death by a fall from his airplane into the sea went on again today.

Efforts to find his body at the point where the crew of his plane and its other occupants report he fell into the English Channel through accidentally opening the exit door of the plane have been futile. The pilot and mechanic of the plane spent several hours cruising about the spot in a tug in a fruitless search.

Tests made at Le Bourget airfield, France, to determine whether it was possible to open the door of a plane in flight showed it was not easy to do so. Two mechanics using a plane similar to that from which Lowenstein disappeared with the motor running at full force found that the air pressure was so great that the combined strength of the two men was just sufficient to open the door wide enough to permit one of them to pass through it. Yet friends of Lowenstein maintained that he often opened the door of his plane to look over the sea and landscape.

Rumors of Hoax. Rumors that the whole affair was a gigantic hoax were circulated in brokers' offices and other concerns interested in dealings of the stock exchange of London, Paris, Berlin and Brussels. One suggestion was that Lowenstein never left Croaydon. Another rumor was that he landed with the plane somewhere between Croaydon and Dunkirk where it was first seen to land, and disappeared, or that he vanished in a fast motorcar after landing at Dunkirk.

Newspapers recalled that the mysterious deaths of prominent persons had always been followed by such reports.

All who knew Lowenstein insisted that he had no reason for committing suicide. In Paris it was thought that the most plausible theory was that the banker had been thrown against the exit door when the plane was banking on a turn and the door opened, permitting him to slip through to his death.

The Paris Journal had its correspondent at Calais investigate the possibility of Lowenstein's vanishing alive. He made a careful examination of official records of the flight and reached the conclusion that the time which elapsed between the departure of the plane from Croaydon and its landing at Dunkirk would have made it impossible for the plane to have made another stop en route.

The correspondent thought that it would have been equally impossible for Lowenstein to have slipped away after the plane landed at Dunkirk without being observed. It was full daylight at the time and the beach was open without any trees or houses in the vicinity to afford cover for flight.

Subject to Heart Attacks. The Daily Express quoted an unnamed intimate friend of Lowenstein as saying the Belgian was subject to sudden heart attacks due to an abnormal blood pressure. The discovery of his collar and tie in the plane suggested to the friend the possibility that Lowenstein had ripped these off to gain relief from a sudden attack. Finding this insufficient he was thought to have forced open the door, splintering the wooden frame, to get fresh air, collapsed from the exertion and plunged to his death.

German Fliers Set New Record

Dessau, Germany, July 7 (AP).—The German aviators Ristler and Zimmerman established a new world's record for a duration flight today. At 3:43 o'clock this afternoon they had surpassed by an hour the Italian record of 58 hours and 34 minutes, and were still flying.

AUTO SKIDS AT HIGHLAND, OWNER SETTLES DAMAGES.

A Pierce-Arrow sedan driven by J. Edouard Levine of New York city skidded on the wet pavement in Main street at Highland. Friday morning and crashed between a tree and the store of Peter Evans at the corner of Grand street. The auto was wedged between the tree and the store so tightly that it took considerable time on the part of Parker Decker to free it. The wind shield was shattered and the headlights broken and front fenders bent. A window in the store was broken. Sergeant Lockhart of the State Troopers took Levine to the office of Harold A. Lent where a settlement was made for the damage done to the Evans store. The driver, who was alone, was able to continue on his way to New York with his car.

Dressing Miss of Eighteen Is Task

Keep Young Girl's Clothes Simple and Practical, Expert Advises.

It is necessary, first of all, says Jean Charles Worth in the New York Herald-Tribune, to keep a young girl's clothes simple and practical, for if she is able to have all the costly trills and furbelows before she is twenty, what is there to interest her in after years?

Furthermore, an every mother knows, a young girl wears her clothes "hard." She is active and careless and her costume must be able to stand hard wear and active movements. Care should be taken in choosing sports clothes of tweeds, flannels, or crepe de chine that will not get out of shape with careless handling or rough usage, and they must be cut carefully and fit so well that the child will feel at ease in them and not be self-conscious. She must feel at home in her clothes. There is nothing worse than to see a young girl who is "clothes conscious" and shyly either because her clothes fit badly or she has chosen the wrong costume, because she can make others as well as herself unhappy. No woman can be a success either socially or otherwise until she is able to forget her clothes after that final look in the glass which tells her that she is perfect.

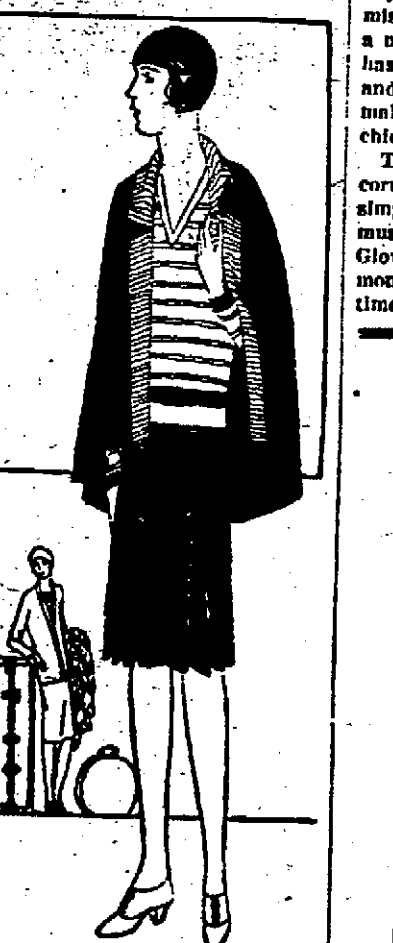

There are certain costumes which are indispensable to a young girl's wardrobe. She must have plenty of plaited skirts and pullovers which she can vary with the use of handkerchiefs or scarfs and wear on many occasions.

Needs Coat for Traveling.

She must have a coat of tweed or cheviot which can be worn for traveling even on short journeys, and worn over her sports costumes and simple frocks; and she must have at least a few child-of or georgette evening dresses, preferably in pale colors to set off her youth and beauty. Black not only makes one look older and more sophisticated but black can only be worn by an older woman of great chic if it is to have distinction.

A black simple afternoon frock can be worn by the young girl who has poise if it has white collars and cuffs to give it a youthful appearance. For instance, "Quaker Girl," both in black satin and a deep red crepe de chine with its white handkerchief linen collar simply hemstitched and embroidered with a small medallion of blue, green and white showing a small ship on the sea, simply cannot be worn by an older woman. Its straight bodice and full skirt, its simple lines and modesty give it a peculiarly youthful quality which is not adaptable even to the older woman of slender figure who gives the semblance of youth.

For summer traveling is suggested a cape costume for the debutante in dark blue tussah silk with a pull-over of light blue jersey into which are woven threads of silver, such as "Bar Harbor." Tussah is a practical silk of long-wearing quality which does not wrinkle badly and its smooth surface helps it to shed dust and dirt. The long collar of the cape is of the same light blue and silver jersey as the pull-over.

Chic for Miss Eighteen.

Then, for spectator sports wear or running about town there is a simple dark red crepe de chine frock which is most suited to Miss Eighteen. This has a sleeveless blouse made from a dark blue and white polka-dotted scarf and a bolero jacket. The skirt is draped in front as well, having five deep tucks and its skirt belt fits the hips snugly. These deep tucks, favored idea for a youthful frock, are repeated in the bolero and in the sleeves.

Regardless of the more "feminine" fashions for women which are gradually creeping into the mode, young girls should invariably wear frocks of this simple type which not only emphasize that most charming of qualities—youth—but which also leave them the opportunity of adding qualities for a later period in their lives.

On the other hand, the evening dress of a young girl need not be too simple. It must be light in color and material to give that feeling of youth, but it may be more intricate in cut and trimming than her day clothes. As an example for a dance frock of this character, a model in pale green chiffon with a three-quarter skirt on character lines with an uneven hemline, is suggested. The surplus line of the bodice, with its modest decoration and the bit of pale green lace which shows through from the slip give it a slight touch of sophistication which is quite suited to her age. And there you have an ideal frock for a young girl which speaks her most endearing quality and hints at the worldly wisdom which will eventually come to her.

So far as the clothes for the very young girl are concerned, more firmly avoiding this clothes consciousness is important. Simplicity and comfort should be the primary and the only considerations, and the child herself should be taught not to worry about the style of her frocks. It is, of course, difficult to point out the exact age at which fashion might be safely introduced as a topic for the young idea. Each parent will have to decide this for herself, as some children are ready to join the ranks of the chic much earlier than others. There is no particular significance to the earliest age at which some girls manifest an interest in style any more than there is significance to the age at which a baby first talks. Eventually the normal youngster will begin to worry about her clothes, and that time, whenever it comes, is soon enough, as nearly every parent knows.

Smartness Most Desired in Milady's Wearables

Just how to go about selecting costumes that contribute to that intangible thing known as smartness is a greater problem than ever in these days of ensembles. For this much-misused word was once the name for a matching frock and coat and now it has come to mean "tout ensemble" and includes all of the things that make or mar a woman's individual chic.

The first step in the assembling of correct costume details is to ask the simple question: "Which accessories must match, which must harmonize?" Gloves and hosiery should be in harmonizing tone of gray or beige, sometimes matching the fur trimming of the coat. Belts, bags and shoes are usually of leather, and it is wise to have these match in color if not in finish or pattern. Soberly cut in gown, or elaborate stitchings and embroidery are considered in extremely bad taste—simple pull-ons of suede or capoteins are by far the best choice for every daytime occasion.

One mistake in chic committed by women is the wearing of repulsive leather shoes with bags of another kind of repulsive. Furbon, lizard, water snake and alligator are the smartest reptile efforts in both real and calf grain leathers this season, and unless one can find a bag of the same material the safest choice is one in plain saddle suede or hoarded calfskin in matching color.

New Corsets Are More Shapely, Serviceable

No longer is there a vague for narrow suspender belts and brief elastic corsets; the new styles are more shapely and more substantial. Many of the new corsets fasten to one side, an idea introduced into heavy satin, cotton and all-elastic corsets. Some women are wearing corsets of thick lace, nicely shaped, and mounted on cotton. Broad satin ribbon is seen with triangles filling up the odd spaces caused by the shaping of the corsets. Interlaced ribbon is used between strips of satin, and it is best to have such corsets made to get the right support when the ribbon may be arranged at the back, front, or the sides. But whatever the style of corset, it is imperative that one should choose a flesh shade this season.

Zones of Earth

The division of the earth's surface into torrid, temperate and frigid zones is determined by the amount of the inclination of the earth's axis to the plane of the ellipse. This inclination being 23 degrees 27 minutes, the torrid zone extends from the equator to latitude 23 degrees 27 minutes, both north and south, while the two temperate zones extend from the torrid zone to within 23 degrees 27 minutes of the pole, the remaining regions lying about each pole forming the two frigid zones.

Derivative Nickname

The term "kitchen cabinet" was applied to certain intimate political friends of President Andrew Jackson, who were supposed to have more influence over his actions than his official advisers. They were Gen. Duff Green, editor of the United States Telegraph at Washington, the confidential organ of the administration; Maj. William B. Lewis of Nashville, Tenn., second auditor of the treasury; Isaac Hill, editor of the New Hampshire Patriot, and Amos Kendall of Kentucky, fourth auditor of the treasury.

Rowboat's Capacity

To test for capacity, fill a boat full of water and find out how many it will support in the water as the people cling to its sides. This number is the safe number to carry in the boat. If boats or canoes are equipped with a small airtight compartment of metal in bow or stern their buoyancy will be greatly increased, but such compartments should be tested frequently for leaks. The capacity of the craft should be plainly marked on its sides.

Getting Along

Getting along with other people depends a lot on your ability to study their nature, and the good in them. It is always there—then adapting the best there is in you to the best you find in those about you.—Grit

Costly Medicines for Patients of Long Ago

Modern lovers need no doctor to tell them that gold and precious gems are good prescriptions "to ease the pain of the heart," but in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries they applied the mercenary cure inwardly. The following, called from "Customs and Fashions of Old New England," was highly recommended, says the Detroit News:

"Take damask roses half-blown, cut off their whites; and stamp them very fine, and strain out the juice very strong; moisten it in the stamping with a little Damask rose water; then put thereto fine powder sugar and boyle it gently to a fine syrup; then take powdered Amber, Pearls, Rubies of each half a dram, Ambergrease one scruple, and mingle them with the said syrup till it be somewhat thick. Take a little thereof on a knife's point morning and evening."

Doctor Gilford's "Amber Pills for Consumption" contained a large quantity of pearls, white amber and coral as did also Lady Kent's powder. Sir Edward Spenser's eye-salve was rich in powdered pearls and so were many other medicines of the time.

Look to Beaver for Abatement of Floods

Beaver ruling is encouraged by the Department of Agriculture as a source of valuable fur and to help in flood prevention, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Experiments already show that the animals can be successfully grown under semidomestic conditions; that they are easily tamed and also increase more rapidly than in wild surroundings, even under control and protection. It is pointed out that many acres of land now unused could be adapted to beaver cultivation. On timber land that has been cut over, there is a sufficiently large later growth to support the animals, and the dams they build would help reduce floods and provide a water supply for the dry seasons. The damage the animals did in the past by felling valuable trees and flooding lowlands could be overcome in the future by proper fencing and trapping.

"Handy Andy" Valuable

"I hope the manual training which schoolboys get today will make them of some use around the house when they're married," said the elderly woman, who had married a minister. "My husband was a perfect failure when it came to doing any bit of hand work around the house. I did not expect much of him, but it would have been a comfort if he could screw up things that got loosened and glue up things that got broken."

"He was willing, but he always did things wrong. I asked him once—only once—to bring down the screens and put them in, and he put in every one upside down. Of course I felt proud I was married to a man who knew enough to be a minister, but sometimes it's a great comfort to have a man around the house who is a 'handy Andy.'"—Springfield Union

Poultry Prospects

Says the Massachusetts Agricultural college: "The outlook for egg, broiler and poultry prices is slightly better than in 1922. Feed costs on the other hand are expected to continue high, at least during the first half of the year." We've covered nine sheets of paper trying to figure out whether that's intended as encouraging or discouraging, says the Farm Life. Our own opinion is that poultry looks better this year than last, and we're going right ahead for a better flock.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

Gloria, Rather Than Boyish, Frocks Interest Us for Evening—Dresses Return With Several Details Surprisingly Mid-Victorian.

New York—Evening dresses, usually lovely, are now delightful. They seem so entirely different from those of other years, being given over to ruffles, bows, berthas, tiers, and all manner of beguiling details. They are essentially feminine in spirit and have a tendency, in spite of a greater elaboration than formerly, to produce an illusion of girlhood.

Every sort of fabric seems possible for evening use. Printed dresses are a spectacle at all smart evening functions, for there are so many prints applicable only to such times and places, prints quite different in every particular from those worn by day. The light-grounded prints may be said to have the most fastidious followers.

The Large Silk and Velvet Flowers at the Shoulder of the Dress in Pink and Fuchsia Repeat the Colors of the Bold Patterned Print. The Applied Bands Release in Back to Form a Scarf, While the Pear-Shape Petals of the Skirt, Posed One Over the Other, Are Interesting Details.

Flowered organdies bring a breath of other days into the present scheme of things, and are, with colored organdies and nets, well liked by women of discriminating taste. One may indulge one's preference for tailored effects, even in these materials, although the more general tendency is toward beruffled and beruffled things of great irregularity of hemline, and not unlike the frocks of Victorian fame. Straight lines have been consigned to that Hambo to which discarded fashions go.

The sash, tied here, there or anywhere, is another arresting detail. It is usually of crumpled silk, often tulle, or be tied at the side to suit a more matronly preference. Bows are developing perkiness and are no longer simply a means of fastening a stifle or neckline.

When Bishop Cannon of the Methodist Church appeared before the platform committee at Houston and demanded a particular plank, he did precisely what some of the Protestant clergy wish to do. Bishop Cannon seems to think that the Catholic Church wishes to do the separation of Church and State makes an exception in favor of the Methodist organization.

Mrs. Phoebe F. Omlie is the only woman piloting a plane in the 6,000 mile air tour for the Edsel Ford reliability trophy. She drives a diminutive "monocoupe" and made perfect scores in the first two flights of the test, those from Detroit to Indianapolis and from Indianapolis to St. Louis. One cannot help wishing Mrs. Omlie continued success. If she comes through the long tour with a good record she will do as much to advance women's interest in aviation as any of the young women who have taken dangerous flights as passengers while skilled men piloted their planes.

A passenger's weight is now limited to 175 pounds on the Brazilian air line. Not that heavier people will be barred from aircraft, or subjected to any such treatment as that of Procrustes in the old Greek tale. But all flesh over the limit mentioned will be regarded as "excess baggage" and charged for accordingly. It's fair enough, too, when you think it over. Weight is the big factor in air transportation. Here is fine propaganda for the slenderness already approved by fashion. But such a rule adopted in this country would give new impetus to dieting, cut down food consumption and make the farmer's lot harder.

MISARRIAGE OF JUSTICE.

The case of another innocent man wrongfully convicted has been brought to light—that of a life prisoner in the New Jersey State prison convicted of first degree murder who escaped the electric chair only by the jury's recommendation to mercy. It seems that he was the victim of an "honest mistake" by two eye-witnesses who positively identified him as one of a gang of seven that held up a mail truck and escaped after killing the driver and wounding two others. Later all of the gang of seven were identified and it was proved beyond question that the victim of the "honest mistake" was not one of them. So far there is no ground for very serious complaint for juries must render their verdicts according to the testimony and can not fall to be especially impressed by the oaths of "eyewitnesses," but what is to be said of the legal machinery that compels this innocent man to remain in prison at least until next September because his application to the court of pardons was "not properly drawn"?

This disclosure shortly follows the news from Germany of the execution of an innocent man for murder owing to an error of identification, and recalls the discovery in England after thirty years that an innocent man had been hanged, whereupon the grievous judiciary caused his bones to be carried through London with great pomp and deposited in consecrated ground. The courts aim at even-handed justice, and no doubt every jury would prefer to let ten guilty men escape than to send one innocent man to his death. The imperfection in the administration of justice to be deplored is that the chances of the poor man wrongfully accused are not equal to those of the man who can afford to secure the best legal talent in his defense.

THE MEXICAN ELECTION.

Gen. Obregon is elected president of Mexico amid a chorus of "vivas." And by a remarkable majority, if you can call it that. The actual vote is said to have been about 100,000, which is not more than one in 15 of the country's voters. But one vote would have been a majority. He had no opposition.

Wherefore this happy state of affairs? Is Mexico unanimous, as the United States was when it chose George Washington for the first President? No, exactly. There were two other candidates, Gen. Serrano and Gen. Gomez. But they grew impatient and started plotting a revolt last fall, and were removed from the contest by the summary process of execution.

Disinterested observers would wish that there were real electoral contests in Mexico, peacefully and honestly conducted. That may come in time, but may be not until after a long time. For the present, there seems to be a sort of benevolent new dictatorship exercised under form of law by Obregon and Calles. Re-election was forbidden, by the constitution; but a constitutional amendment adopted last year permits it after an interim. Obregon serves a term, and turns the great-decay over to Calles, who serves a term and now turns it over to Obregon again, probably in hope of a similar good turn for himself next time. The two statesmen are right and left hand, and one hand washes the other.

Let us not be over-critical. These are good men, who on the whole are serving their country better than usual and doing pretty well by other countries. This kind of arrangement may be as good as can be expected for the present. It may be a useful step in the evolution of a real Mexican democracy.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

HEROINE OF GAS GANGRENE.

Some months ago I wrote about the heroic deed of a private soldier John Kissinger in the United States army, who allowed himself to be bitten by a mosquito which had been in contact with a patient with yellow fever. This caused yellow fever. His life was saved by immediate treatment and the nation now has given him an adequate pension, because he proved the mosquito to be the cause of yellow fever.

And now there comes to hand the act of a laboratory worker Miss K. M. G. Davies an Englishwoman who in 1915 was working in the American Hospital, Neuilly, Paris, under Dr. Taylor of the Imperial Cancer Research.

Dr. Taylor was investigating the cause and treatment of gas gangrene. He was experimenting with guinea pigs but could not obtain results which would justify him in trying out these experiments on a human being. The crucial experiment of inoculating a human being with a pure culture seemed impossible. Miss Davies had seen 209 fatal cases of gas gangrene, had seen some guinea pigs die and some recover under Dr. Taylor's experiment.

Without word to anyone she took a room near the hospital, gave herself two injections of the culture deep into the thigh, and then sent for Dr. Taylor. She had thus furnished him with a case of pure gas gangrene.

He promptly injected the remedy with which he had been working—guinea hydrochloride. She was removed to the American Hospital and in twenty-four hours was pronounced out of danger.

By her extraordinary self sacrifice in taking the risk of a painful and lingering death, she proved the efficacy of the treatment and thus saved thousands of lives.

The treatment was subsequently used by the American ambulance but the modesty of Miss Davies prevented any honor being given to herself. She desired that the treatment should be preventive and wrote an article showing that if the government cloth issued for military uniforms was treated with guinea hydrochloride, the action of gas gangrene might be prevented.

It was portions of this cloth getting into wounds that was the big factor in causing gas gangrene.

When we think of this self sacrifice, also that of Private Kissinger and also of that when Mrs. Hamilton and Beat were working on insulin as a cure for diabetes, Banting insisting on being the first human to be injected, and remember that in every case these sacrifices were made for the sake of "the other fellow," our hearts must thrill with pride.

Because that body of yours is what carries all you have in life. You can grasp therefore what these sacrifices mean to you and yours.

Last Dog Comes Home After 500 Mile Trip

Minden, Neb.—Last summer Tony, Airedale dog belonging to Dixie Virginia Samples, eight and Marjorie Ann Samples, four, of Minden, strayed from the family car while they were vacationing at Ertel's, Minn., 500 miles from home.

The girls and their parents mourned the dog as dead or hopelessly lost until recently he trotted up to the door whining and barking joyfully. It had taken the dog nine months, and it was estimated he must have traveled thousands of miles getting home.

Tony's feet were sore and his claws worn off. He was gaunt and hungry.

Tony has been in the Samples family since he was six weeks old. Now he is six years old, and will remain in the family until he dies a natural death, all members agree.

Ann Milburn, soprano, who has been featured in several Broadway musical productions, will be the guest artist of the O-Cedar Shining Hour which will be heard through WEAF and allied stations of NBC on Monday evening at 8. Miss Milburn will sing "Alice Blue Gown," "The Kiss I Best Remember" and "The Pretty Little Way You Kiss."

Sergeant Hare and Corporal Jones will march their Flit Soldiers into headquarters on next Thursday night for their weekly half hour of music and merriment. The program will be heard through WJZ and allied stations of NBC at ten-thirty o'clock. The song numbers will include "Low Down," by Sergeant Hare; "I'd Rather Cry Over You Than Smile Over Somebody Else," by Corporal Jones; and three duets, "Good Looking," "Flies" and "Blue Grass."

a matter of common knowledge. Demand has always exceeded production. Its powerful engine is equipped with 7-bearing crankshaft, Invar-strut pistons, silent timing chain. Force-feed lubrication.

The Willys-Knight Standard Six offers the exclusive advantages of the patented Willys-Knight double sleeve-valve engine at the lowest price in history. The Special Six and Great Six complete this masterly line of highest quality motor cars.

Police Must Give More Information

Albany, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Police clerks all over New York state have been working overtime this week according to reports received here as a result of the new state law which changed the mode of filing reports and statistical information with the State Department of Corrections here, on July 1.

Police blotters in some cities have already been changed to conform to the new requirements which include such information concerning prisoners which was formerly overlooked in many cases. Education, religious and marital relations and a number of heretofore neglected items of information must all be included in the reports now, and the conversations between the desk sergeant and a prisoner can no longer be confined to the questions:

"How old? Where do you live? Married? Ever been arrested before?"

In cases of arrest for theft the value of the stolen property and the names of investigating officers must be included in the report.

Plants Trees As Legacy to Son

Albany, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Governor John D. Rockefeller, chairman of the Clarke-McClary forestry law under which New York state cooperated with the federal government in planting 22,500 trees last year, plans to leave a few thousand trees as part of his legacy to his son.

In a letter to Alexander McClary, Jr., Commissioner of Conservation for the state of New York, Mr. Rockefeller announced his decision, and that he had already planted 75,000 trees. He intends to keep on planting, he declared, "knowing that my boy will have something of value, even if the few little pieces of paper I will him never amount to anything."

Mr. Rockefeller reported he had had luck with the first 5,000 trees he planted, owing to dry weather. The trees were planted on plowed soil and most of them died. He repeated the experiment last year, planting 10,000 trees on plowed gravelly soil. After looking over all the different plantings, he announced the expected success.

"I also know," the letter continued, "that a tree with a pipe and a matrix can do as I lost nearly 2,400 trees in only a brief period. Prove that with a little intelligent and patient effort as well as protection, our little series set to work instead of standing form one of the authors to the problem of better tomorrow."

We recognize this year as 1928; the Mohammedans call it 1246; the Jews, 5688; the Japanese, 2587; and the Byzantine calendar says it is 7420. The chances really are that it is about 1,000 years old.

Remembering what happened to the price of liver when we found that it had a peculiar "therapeutic" value, we wonder how the honey market is going to react to the news that bee stings can cure rheumatism.

In making his escape from a mob of peevish purchasers a street faker in New York city slipped on a banana peel and was captured and held for the police. This is the first evidence of a skin game working both ways.

New York scientists declare they have under observation a chicken heart that is sixty years old. It is indiscreet of them to reveal the fact, since thousands of restaurant chefs will immediately cover it for their glib stew.

Bride

Her husband was patiently waiting to take her out. At last she was ready, and came tripping up to him. "There," she exclaimed, "I wasn't very long, was I? Do you know, sometimes I—" She broke off and stopped to look in the hall mirror.

"George, dear," she began afresh, "haven't I got a tiny mouth? In the glass it doesn't look large enough to hold my tongue."

"It doesn't," said her husband.

REAL D. A. R. CELEBRATES HER 97TH BIRTHDAY

Port Dickinson, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Mrs. Jane Squire Dean, said to be the only surviving real daughter of the American Revolution and an honorary member of Tuscarora Chapter, D. A. R., observed her 97th birthday here on July 4. The day was spent quietly at her home, Tuscarora Chapter having arranged a post card shower in her honor.

Mrs. Dean is the daughter of Jonathan Squire, who joined Colonel Van Schaek's First New York Regiment when he was 15 years old. She was born July 4, 1831, on a farm near Flahill-on-Hudson. In addition to her father, several other relatives served with the Colonial forces.

At the close of the War of Independence, her father moved to Matineawan, overlooking the Hudson, where he died when she was 11 years old. Mrs. Dean still recalls pioneer days when Indians frequented spots on which city skyscrapers now tower, and when travel was by ox teams over mountain trails above which the air transport now roars.
